	13 Things to Conside EFORE Beginning	We're There	We're Not Yet There
8	the EE: STW Application Process, continued The school has an operational and formalized structure of distributed leadership that embraces a clear and current vision and mission the school. Groups meet independerately regularly. They have a clearly articulated system of norms, a collaborative purpost accountability measures, communication protocols, and the abit and the motivation to make meaningful decisions. Explicitly, the school leadership isot just the administration or a small group of teachers, nor is it "all the teachers buying in to top down decisions." It is an organized system of learners and leaders. The school is an integral part of the community. It seeks support to the community.	ted for se, lity	Tet There from the community (universities, colleges, businesses, etc.) a provides support to the community in terms of student volunte services, facilities, and joint projects.	and
10	The master schedule of the schisola reflection of students' needs and school mission. It is flexible and innovative in providing time and opportunity for coherent, rigours, standards-based instruction for all students within the school day. It provides students with curricular opportunities in core signets, targeted intervention opportunities, exploratory courses, and physical education. provides common planning time for teacher teams in the school work collaboratively on the behalf of their students. It creates smaller, closer learning communities for students. Explicitly the master schedule givesiquity to students' needs over adults' needs.	e th It I to
11	Curriculum, instruction, school-wide strategies, assignmen homework, assessment, grading are plorting, enrichment projects and activities (i.e. History Day, Sciee Fair, field trips) in each subject area are inclusive, consistent, and coherent across the sci Explicitly, each and every students equal access, opportunity, and challenge in any classroom to which they are assigned.	nool.
12	Most (if not all) teachers regularly practice a variety of research based instructional and assessment strategies (e.g., differenting instruction, flexible grouping, hands-on learning, etc.), guided by to-date, standards-based curricula and systematic data collection analysis, that engage and challenge every student in their classro	ated ip and om.
13	The school is a community of learners, constantly working togeth to refine curriculum, improve classroom instruction, create a positic climate/culture, and meet the academic and personal needs o students and all staff. Explicitly, the school is a vibrant learning community committed that and engaged in, continuous pinovement and personal growth.	ve f all	